Bedman's Crime ADIJEUSES EVANSVILLE, Ind., October 11. At ten minutes past two this marning about

The first intelligence received by the officers was at ten minutes past two o'clock, when the night turnkey, Hatmacher, received a tele-phone message from Uilmer's brewery that a masked met had passed up the sirect on horseback. Hatmacher immediately potified Newitt, who hastened to the just. Hatmacher, after notifying Newitt, went to the Sheriff's residence to give the slarm. Sheriff Kerth and Deputies Mauntel and Martin and Tom Kerth Jr., were on the slert, prepared to de-fe d the juil and the prisoner. Newitt soon Mrrived, and went into the Clerk's office to telephone for assistance. He heard the clatter-ing of the horses hoofs coming up the bowlered streets, and hurried back into the jail

Sheriff Kerth was at the front door of the court-house when the mob arrived.

The mob dismounted, picketed their enimals, left a guard to cover their retreat, and mais, left a guard to cover their retreat, and captured all the citizens who shappened to be attracted to the scene, while a portion of the mob made a dive for the jail. Kerth fired at them, but they did not falter. They took him prisoner and were into the jall-yard in a jiffy, opened up a brisk fire, which was responded to by the mob, who poured a fusilade through the door. Chisels and sledge-hammers were soon brought, and willing hands went to work, and in a twinkling the fail door was open. Newitt ran back to Redman's cell and said to him: "I have done all I could for you; they will get you;" and he replied, with an eath, that if they would give him a revolver he would kill some of them. When the jail door was opened the mob rushed through the corridor to Redman's cell, and in a minute it was opened and Redman in their hands. They tied his hands with a strong rope and led him out. The officers all this time were trying to escape from jall and to get assistance so as to capture the mob, or some of them. Newitt managed to get into the Sheriff's residence and run up stairs to the front window, which he opened and blow his whistle. Then the mob followed him and threw him down stairs. When he got up the mot were bringing Redman out of the front door, They were ordered to halt, when their leader replied: "We are from Poscy County, and came after Redman, and we are going to have

Redman was killed where he was stricken down with the sledge-hammer. Over two dozen balls entered his body.

It was at this place that David Murphy, a brother-in-law of the murdered woman, n his death. The mob was so intent on killing Redman that they fired holter-skeller through their own ranks. Murphy was astride a gray horse, which started down Third street the remainder of the mob. When they left, a year 1881, 532,500; population for 1882, 969,-700. He was carried into the courthouse, and medical aid was summoned.

The body of Redman was conveyed to the court-house, but life was extinct. Murphy saked for a drink of water, and said he resided in Mt. Vernon. In twenty minutes afterwards he was a corpse. The mob, on leaving the seene, separated, and everything was done to avoid the officers.

In a short time after the occurrence, a young man, a stranger, approached the place where the bodies of Murphy and Redman were lying. Chief Pritchell arrested him, and be gave his name as Quincy A. Dave McFadden, a brother of the murdered woman, was shortly afterward arrested by Detective Merritt in Young's saloon. Newitt Detective Merritt in Young's saloon. Newitt recognized him as the person who pointed it revolver at him in the jall and said: #We are from Posey County; are after and going to have Redman." He was locked up. The fourth arrest was made by Officers Zopp and Stetzer, at the corner of Fourth and Main streets. The officers saw a man coming up street on horseback, and prepared to arrest him. He fired at the officers, but fortunately missed them. He was taken into custody. He knocked one of them down, and gave the other a severe tussle, but was landed tion-house. All the prisoners captured by the police were heavily armed. They had two revolvers BEDMAN'S CRIME.

On the night of the 6th inst, the neighbors of Hume Redman, whose home was about three miles northwest of Mount Vernon, heard loud cries of "Mercy!" "For God's sake, don't kill me!" and at the same time sounds of blows being struck, and shortly after a pistol was fired off. Several of the neighbors went over to the house and found Redman's wife lying upon the floor about two feet from the door in a dying condition, wellering in her blood.

Medical aid was summoned, but by the time the doctor arrived the woman was dead. The Coroner was notified, and upon examination the woman was found to have been terribly beaten, her body being covered with bruises from kicks and blows. The pistol ball entered her head just behind the left care. It is supposed that while she was being beaten by the brute she managed to get away from him and started for the door, when he shot her down. She was about nihoteen years of age. Redmin was arrested and placed in the Mount Vernon Juil. A mob was organized to hang him, and on learning of this the Posey County officials determined to take Redman to Evansville.
